THOUSANDS MAKE HOLIDAY TO SEE SLAYER HANGED

Men, Women and Children Picnic About Jail Yard to Witness Execution.

MURDERER KILLED 4

"Privacy" Required by Law Took Form of Fence 5 Feet High.

TUPELO, Miss., Aug. 11,-Five thousand people, practically the whole population of the county, including old women and little children, guthered around a fenced-in scaffold u the jail yard here yesterday afternoon to see Charlie Marshall hanged. It was an unprecedented holiday in the history of this town, made famous already as the home of the late "Private" John M. Allen, former Con-

Many among the spectators had seen hangings before, but they were generally common lynchings. This was a legal execution, and especially interesting because of the crime.

Marshall murdered four members of the Robert Miller family at Amery, Miss. He set fire to Miller's se and then threw dynamite into St. So he had to die, and the people de a fete of it-probably the serest boilday since the burning of the Salem witches. The train that coght Marshall himself to Tupelo blee brought a throng of excursionists to see him die. They came from all the mearby villages and farms. REGULAR "CIRCUS DAY" FOR COUNTRY FOLK.

They were dressed in their Sunday black and there was a great display of "boiled" shirts. They came in buggies and "canopy top" surreys and hay ricks. The frugal brought shoe bux luncheons. Opportunists, seizing the chance to profiteer a bit, sold sandwiches by the basketful, semonade stands sprang up as they do in any village along the parade line when a circus comes to town.

The law of Mississippi says that hangings shall be "private," and the fact that thousands witnessed this one does not mean that the law was violated. It was obeyed to the letter -to the letter only.

When he scaffold had been erected in the fall yard the Sheriff ordered Condition of "Trophies," Says a fence built around it. Sust before the "drop" there was such a rush against the fence that the deputies frew revolvers to defend the incicoure, fearing that the eggshell harrier would be crushed in. But it held and at 1.30 o'clock Marshall was declared dead. Then the children were lifted again to the fence top to see his body swinging from the tibbet.

Strenuous Preliminaries Force Postponement From Morn-

Two shy little gypsy girls, arrayed in gorgeous colors and wearing necklaces, bracelets and armiets of gold coins estimated to be worth from $1,200 to $1,600 each, are the centre of attraction to-day at the large gypsy encampment three miles out of Tuckahoe, N. Y. For this is the day when with a pomp unknown outside Romany circles they are to become engaged to two little boys of the

The engagement ceremony was to have taken place this morning, but what with having danced all night as a preliminary warming up for the big event, the 250 gypsies in the thirty tents forming a semi-circle in a clearing in a picturesque wood setting, were so tired that they disregarded the sun, acting as an alarm clock and turned over to take another encoze. So the ceremony was postponed until this afternoon. Not a few of the children scampered about the camp without so much as a one-piece garment. These, it was hinted, may go so far as to have their faces washed in festive preparation as guests.

Bandits Force Cashiers Into Vaults and Flee in Auto With $5,000.

PORTLAND, Conn., Aug. 21.-Four men with revolvers to-day held up George F. Cramer, cashier of the Portland National Bank and Oliver Ellisworth, cashler of the Freestone Savings Bank, in the same building. The cashiers were forced into the bank vault and the door closed. The robbers then scooped up about $5,000 in bills and fled in an automobile.

The hold-up and robbery would have been a silent affair had not the men discharged their revolvers in and out of the bank building before departing. Some citizens say that there were as many as twenty-five shots fired. Half an hour before the payrolls for several local concerns had teen made up and sent out.

In the bank at the time of the incident was a woman clerk who got out a rear entrance as Cashier Cramer was being driven into the vault. She ran back into the bank when the machine drove away and finding the vault lever up she swung the doors open and Cramer and Elisworth came out after being imprisoned but a few
